Assessment of children's abilities and knowledge, their approaches to learning, and their strengths, needs, and interests is expected in most early childhood programs. However, many early childhood educators are unsure of how to assess young children's development and learning. This training will:

...Help increase understanding of child assessment
...Focus on children's development and learning
...Provide an overview of basic assessment concepts.

Facilitated by Michelle Rupiper, this series will help you feel more efficient and effective in your work with young children and provide information on:

- Why do we assess?
- Developmentally appropriate assessment
- Tools and approaches for recording information
- Organizing and interpreting that information
- Using your assessment information
- How to get started
- And much more!
